fuot of anuw in expected to arrive with the New Year on the eleaguered west coust.

The Gulf of Alaska is insuing a storm raied with the name potential as one that dropped the first big anowfall Dec. 19-19.

A blizzard roaring down the B.C. coast Wednesday dumped up to 23 inches of snow on central Vancouver Island communities which were stready recling from earlier spowfalls, but skipped Vletoria.

Hardest hij was the Comox Volley, where the vital RCAF base was nearly snowed in and where side roads at Courtenay were impassable and business almost at a standstill. Municipalities from Laka lonay were starting to express storm about the spiralling cost ol snow removal, and there was no relief in sight. The weather office in Victoria predicted Wednesday night that northerly winds will bring another blanket of snow to the northern half of the Island this morning, spreading to the southern half by noon.

Victoria, which escaped the heavy downfall and had more toan five hours of sunshine Wednesday, had only some intense last brief snow flurries in the morning and evening.

The Wednesday morning storm which stunned Vancouver Island was caused by frigid air spilling out from the Interior over the warmer water off the coast of the Island.

All training exercises at Cimox air lorce base were canvelled Wednesday because of snow, but ample runway space was cleared for the five-minuteslert active air defence aircraft to take off if they had been needed.

However, the CF-101 Voudoo interceptors used to search out unidentified aircraft detected by the North American Air Defence Command's radar installations did not have to scramble, said at, Air Force spokesman.

There was three feet of snow on the ground at the air base, where crows were working around the clock to clear away 23 Inches of snow which lell after midnight Tuesday.

At Campbell River, three feet of snow on top of some houses bad started caving in roots. R.C. I'ydro crews were working overtime to repair power lines, and side roads were so plugged by snow that no rural mail deliver les were made Monday or Wednesday.

Cabinet Shuffle Coming?

By ALEC MORRISON

OTTAWA (UPI)-Prime Minister Pearson is planning a major cabinet shuffle that will involve six present ministers and possibly see a new minister "imported" from outside the Commons, it was learned Wednesday.

Reliable sources indicated the prime ministee would announce the changes before the end of January in order to let the nev cabinet settle in before Parijament resumes Feb. 16.

embark on a cabinet re-organization at this time, the sources aald, but heavy pressure from within the present cabinet, the Liberal caucus and from outside the party forced his hand.

C. Douglas and Creditiste Real Caouette — that the Liberals "clean house" if they want to have support for their minority government when the Commons reconvenes.

The threat is a serious one to an administration that has to count on the backing of at least one minor party to stay in DOM CT.

The six cabinet ministers reported under consideration in the shuffle include three Quebec members and three from English Canada. Two of them were directly concerned with the serles of seandals which rocked the Liberal government late this

Crisis in Britain

WHEN the Labor Party won a tiny majority last October in the British elections, many traditional Tory groups, unimpressed with 13 years of Conserva-tive rule, were sympathetic and happy to let the other side show what it could do.

Since then, however, grave misgivings have arisen among responsible parties that the country may have jumped out of the frying pan into the fire.

Mr. Callaghan's interim budget has been generally deplored both by left and right. Its tariff surcharge has further embittered British relations with the rest of Europe-de Gaulle is reported to have gone so far as to sack his aides who speak English—and the idealistic socialist measures promised for the 1965 budget by the chancellor have roused dismay that the country may be in for a period of "London School of rule.

While the current sterling crisis cannot be blamed upon the present government, it has come at a time and with an intensity that leaves the world generally despondent as to whether Mr. Wilson's cabinet has the business acumen, as apart from economic ideology, to save the situation.

The baid fact is that sterling is in grave danger, worse probably than ever before.

In the series of steriing crises which have occurred since 1945, the amount of relief required to save sterling has grown alarmingly. After Sucz Britain had to borrow $1,300,000,000 (U.S.) from foreign sources to restore confidence in the pound. In the 1961 crisis $2,000,000,000 was required, and in the current crisis, the IMF loans amount to a maximum of $4,000,000,000.

Britain, as banker for the sterling group, has insufficient reserves to hold off recurring runs on the pound, and during the past year its booming domestic economy has increased the country's imports without achieving a counterbalance in exports.

This imbalance of international payments is the root of the present crisis, and there is, everywhere but in Britain, a general appreciation of the fact that the cure can only be effected by Britain itself. Loans and the like are merely palliatives offering no permanent cure, Britain's trouble is that its unions have in the post-war years achieved tremendous advances in wages without any accompaniment of Increased production.

Industry has been partly to blame. Mechanization and assembly line techniques have not been enforced to meet foreign competition, partly because of the expense involved and even more so by union opposition to any form of progress that threatens to reduce the labor content in each product.

If the present government does not recognize the urgency of getting industry and labor together in an emotional campaign "to save the country" such as occurred in 1914 and then in 1939, the outlook for Britain is dull indeed.

Indeed, and this is what worries the whole free world most, if Britain fails to renovate its economy, the only step left will be devaluation of the pound, ending sterling as an international currency, and dramatically upheaving all IMF policies. It would also spell the end of Britain as an international power.

Quitting Time

TT SEEMS ANOMALOUS that New Zealand with more job openings than workers to fill them should reduce the compulsory retirement age for its civil servants to 60, or in some cases even less for those who have completed 40 years of work. The new policy will make for even more "over-full employment. But this unusual circumstance, on the other hand, In Itself has the effect of making earlier retirement from governmental service more acceptable to the people who will be directly affected. It makes it easy to find another jab to supplement superannuationand not for that purpose aione, but to keep busy and to be able to continue to use the skills and knowledge gained in the main career, if one wants. Thus the seniors in the New Zealand civil service are not so likely to resent and resist making way for the promotion of younger employees while still at or near the peak of their capabilities as would be, for instance, their counterparts in Canada.

Indeed, judging by an Ontario government survey, the retirement-age trend for public employees in this country would be in the other direction lf civil servants approaching 65 could have their way. Nearly three-quarters of the workers in this category said in reply to questions they would prefer to continue full or part-time past this mandatory quitting age. They cited as reasons enjoyment of work, the feeling that on retirement they would be shelved, no longer contributing in a worthwhile way to life, and, some of them, the fear of inadequate income. All these reasons would of course be accentuated and even more broadly put forward were the employees required to leave the service any sooner than they now are.

Nevertheless, there is cause to wonder if in a decade or so Canada may not be following New Zealand's example though without the supplemental employment of the superannuated which that country offers. The pressure of an increasing potential work force, combined with the effects of automation, would appear to point in that direction—to shorter careers as well as shorter hours so that more may have jobs. The possibility is one that may have considerable bearing on the future operation of the Canada Pension

Thinking Aloud

. . . af shoes, and ships, By TOM TATLOR

e note to yours truly a reader recalls the happy youthful days he spent devour-ing "penny dreadfuls," especithe schoolboy literature depleting the adventures of the heroes of the Gem and Magnet weekly papers.

I was an addlet mysell of Tom Merry and Harry Wharton, et al, and so, I have come to learn, wers many present-day Victorians of that vintage.

These were innocent tales, really. Quite unsophisticated. The teen-ager of today would scorn them, although actually there isn't much difference be-tween the Beatles' "Yeah, Yeah, Yeah" and the "Ha, Ha, Ha" and "Yow, Yow, Yow, Yow" of the Greyfriam and St. Jim'a boys. The dialogue in both schools was the same, which Noel Coward remarks upon but isn't strange since the same author. Richards, wrote tales: and sometimes set one group against the other on the porta field to challenge the loyalty of his readers.

The well-known English the atrical figure comes into the context because my reader arnt me an extract from Cow ard'a "Present Indicative," wherein the latter tells of his early fondness for Chums, the BOP and the Magnet and Gem.

They were "awfully manly decent fellows," recalls Coward of Richards' schoolboys, whose "healthy mindedness was almost frightening." Should it have been?

I can remember when the Magnet first came out, and wish now I had kept the initial number, ft is worth something as e collector's item, I believe, But It added one more to the "penny dreadfuls"—not at all dreadfuls read glued to my eyes even while crossing a street inter-section. That's a salari no boy in his senses could risk nowndays in the modern motor

This was the introduction of Harry Wharton to the fletional cast of schoolboy literature. He became kingpin of the Grey-frians clan, but if I remember aright he was a sullen youth to begin with. He had to be knocke to shape before he evolved into the clean-cut here of the Greyfriars code.

They weren't all awfully manly and decent, however, Billy Bunter, for example, the little cheat who was a squalid, greedy nuisance with but one redeeming feature; he was a ventriloquist who could make a ssage cry out when stabbed with a fork, as Coward remem-

Azalea Fussy Drinker

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRUS

As you probably know, it has become my habit at this season of the year lo do a series of articles on the care of Christmas gift houseplants, for I hate to see any of these lovely and normally long-lived plants lost through ignorance or improper care.

The other day I outlined some general rules; today I think we might become a little more specific and take up the culture of the loveliest and certainly the most expensive of the gift houseplants, the Azaica.

In nature, the houseplant Azalea Is a dwarf evergreen flowering ahrub, and as such it should be capable of giving years of enjoyment,

Only too often, though, the plant is a sickly, sorry specimen by the end of January, and the most com-mon cause of this early demise is watering with the wrong kind of

You see, the Azalea has a violent dislike for chlorine, fluorine, calcium and other alkaline mineral salts found in most organized water supplies.

These salta do little harm in outdoor gardening, but in a potted plant tend to build up in the soil, under constant watering, to a point where the concentration becomes injurious to the health of the plant.

The only really safe watering tor an Azaica is with rainwater, meited snow, or the defrostings' trom an elertric refrigerator:

In watering, aim at keeping the peaty soil evenly but just barely to stick your finger deep into the peat mixture to check up on the moisture

The plant likes plenty of sunshine In winter, with light shade in sum-mer, and prefers a temperature a little on the cool side, ideally around 60 degrees, but with adequate ventlistion and plenty of fresh air.

Some feeding is necessary, as Azaleas are usually potted up in almost pure peat which contains very little plant food. A good plan is to teed once a week, switching from straight ammonium suiphste one werk to a proprietory houseplant fertillzer the next.

This could be llypones, instant Vigoro, Liquid Lite, Atias or Alaska Fish Emulsion or Alginure Llquid Seaweed plant food,

The idea of using ammonium sulphate in the alternate weeks is to maintain the potting soil in a slightly acid condition, one of the special needs of this plant,

In each feeding, use a fraction less than half a teaspoonful per pint of lukewarm water. Always err on the side of too little rather than too much, and always apply to the top of the soil rather than pouring the fertilizer solution into the saucer under the pot. It is a good idea too, especially during the winter, to spray the icaves, buds and blossoms daily with a fine mist of plain water. An Azalea will alwaya perform hotiday outdoors. Pick a lightly shaded spot—a little morning sun won't hurt—and slnk the pot up to its rim in a small pit filled with gravei or peat moss.

Reep up the regular watering and teeding all summer—it is safe to use tap water while the plant is outdoors -and freshen up the leaves with a water spray every time you have the

To maintain a pleasing shape and compact size, keep nipping off the soft green branch tips with a sharp thumbnail.

tiring your plant indoors in the fall when the night temperatures threaten to drop below 45 degrees. This will be the seml-dormant period in the life of your Azalea-just alter It has been brought Indoors and It ould be kept a little cooler and a little drier than normal.

The idea here is to give the plant a short resting period to induce lots of bioom, and the trick to juggle air temperature and soil moisture in such a way as to keep it barely alive and just ticking over, but without losing any leaves.

A temperature between 45 and 50 is good, with plenty of light, and only just enough water to keep the leaves trom falling. After four weeks of rest, it can be restored to normal cool room temperature and normal teeding and watering.

Tree Letter Pegs—Oil Buoys

The time has come to say goodbye to another old year, and to present in its honor a piece of prose that literally does not make sense.

To those not familiar with this strange tradition, we can only say that this is a special kind of nonsense that must be read aloud in a hopeful way with the mind in neutral. With luck, it becomes a familiar children's story. It does for some people, anyway, For others of us, it merely becomes maddening.

In the past we have pre-sented such stories as Jerk Anna Bin Stock, Ghoul Delux Anno Tree Beers and Literate Writing Good. These things are composed by contributors. We don't want the credit or the blame. This year's story, Tree Letter Pegs, was composed by a talented and mysterious lady who insists upon being anonymous, Remember, read it aloud and listen to the sounds. A New Year's Eve party makes an Ideal Intellectual setting for a reading.

NEW YORK (NANA) - Klim Novak did not leave a broken-hearted Richard Johnson behind her in London when she flew with her family to Chicago. Richard, her goodlooking co-star in The Adventures of Moll Flanders, flew in from London to join Kim and her family. On Monday Kim and Richard tiew to her home in Carmel, near Sen Francisco. At the beginning of the film, Kim was in lova with a painter from Monterey. Richard's heart was in hock to young Geraldine Chaplin. But Geraldine was in Spain, painter was in California. And absence and proximity can raise the devil in the hearts of a maid and a man The big question now is, will/Kim and Richard get married? This sort of thing has happened before in Klm's love life—with Mae Krim, with the late Aff Khaa whose father did not want him to marry another actress, with director Richard Quine, with Roderick Mann ii was sure they would marry and so was Roddy). Perhaps at last Kim has decided to take the plunge.

Unusual Combination

Market Acting Up

Colonial Buntstean Editor

Unusual things happened in the stock and bond markets wednesday. Gold shares took another big leap to a new index high; industrials, particularly in New York, put on a year-end rally showing, and there was a second day in succession rise in bond prices.

A local dealer said this was a combination of events he could not remember happening before, "When golds are going up, other segments of the market are usually going down," he said, "People switch their industrials into golds when they lear the market is weakening, and bonds are sold when there is a fear of devaluation of the market is weakening. # Cabinet Shuffle Coming?

By ALEC MORRISON

OTTAWA (UPI)-Prime Minister Pearson is planning a major cabinet shuffle that will involve six present ministers and possibly see a new minister "imported" from outside the Commons, li was learned Wednesday.

ficilable sources indicated the prime minister would announce the changes before the end of January in order to let the new cabinet settle in before Parliament resumes Feb. 16. embark on a eablnet re-organiration at this time, the sources sald, but heavy pressure from within the present cabinet, the Liberal caucus and from outside the party forced his hand.

'Clean House

This need was emphasized by C. Douglas and Creditiste Real Caouette — that the Liberals "clean house" if they want to have support for their minority government when the Commons reconvenes. The threat is a serious one to an administration that has to count on the backing of at least one minor party to stav in

A blizzaril coaring down the R.C. coast Wednesday dumped up to 23 litches of snow on centies which were already reeling from earlier snowfalls, but skipped Victoria.

Harilest hit was the Comos Valley, where the vital RCAF base was nearly snowed in and where side roads at Courtenay were impassable and business slmost at a standstill, Municipalities from Lake Cowichan as far north as Congtenay were starting to express utarm about the spiralling cost of snow removal and there was no reliel in sight.

The weather office in Victoria predicted Wednesday night that northerly winds will bring another blanket of snow to the northern half of the Island this morning, spreading to the southery half by noon.

Victoria, which escaped the heavy downfall and had more toan five hours of sunshine Wednesday, had only some intense morning and evening.

The Wednesday morning storm which stunned Vanceover Island was caused by frigid air spilling warmer water off the coast of the Island.
